Q: Bootstrap 3.0, input type file doesn't show label I am using the most recent version of Bootstrap 3.0.3 (the one that currently includes the new forms) and there is a problem that I don't know how to fix: The input type file doesn't display a label and only shows the input-field. In my case, I want to have a file that displays the filename when clicked, and when not clicked the input-field only appears. Do you have an image? Yes No Any ideas? The input type file doesn't display a label and only shows the input-field. It's not exactly the input that doesn't show the label, it's the input that doesn't display the label (and the actual input). It's only visible for Firefox and probably others, you should use the input field and add some styling on top of it to style it, I guess this is the case of your problem. I want to have a file that displays the filename when clicked, and when not clicked the input-field only appears. You can use the "preview" attribute on the input field to make it visible or invisible. It's a pseudo-input element that doesn't have the value attribute but a " 82157476af
